

Valve Inspection Program

Valves are flow devices connected to water main lines to regulate; to stop or start water into the water distribution system. Valves are used to immediately isolate main breaks, to reduce the number water service interruptions to residents and business owners, in the event of a water main repair.

A valve inspection program is a maintenance program performed by the City's water distribution staff to ensure that valves function properly, especially in the event of an emergency water main repair.

